FORMER GRAYLING GIRL WEDS IN CADILLAC

Of interest to friends in Grayling is the marriage of Miss Lillian Mary Roebuck, a daughter of Mrs. Glen Morgan of Cadillac, to R. E. Olsen, also of Cadillac, on Wednesday afternoon, July 10.

The ceremony took place on the flag court in the center of CCC Camp Annapolis, Md., where the groom is W.P.A. shop instructor. About 172 civil and officers witnessed the ceremony, standing in semi-military formation around the court, and Rev. Everett A. Moore officiated. After the rites had been read the bride party walked under an arch of steel, consisting of entourage forming the arch with spades.

The bride was prettily attired in a gown of powder blue sheer with pink accessories, and carried a bouquet of sweet peas and pink and white roses. She was given away in marriage by her step-father, Mr. Glen Morgan, sister of the bride, Mrs. Gilbert Edwards, and Grover A. Choate, Junior Forester, were their attendants.

Camp Supt. John F. Croft was in charge of the arrangements and the refreshments served after the ceremony, which was the first wedding to be held in this camp. Commanding Officer Harold F. Reverski and Subaltern Byron A. Bouliware assisted. Mrs. Olsen is the granddaughter of Mrs. Katie Waldron of this city, and resided in Grayling with her mother at one time, attending Grayling schools until the family moved to Cadillac. She will be remembered by many friends here who with the Avalanche join in extending congratulations and best wishes for many years of wedded happiness.

IN THE AMERICAN MOULD

The Republican party has fulfilled its obligation to the nation by nominating Wendell Willkie for president. It was a universal hope that this year the convention would be free of pressure groups, free of "back room" influence, and free of machine control. That hope has been fully realized. Mr. Willkie is that rare individual, a candidate without commitments. He is the slufest to temper his views in the light of the political winds. He was completely frank as to his position on every issue, and never stooped to evasion or took refuge in silence. He was, in the best sense of the word, a people's candidate—a man whose support came from the average men and women of America, not from political bosses with their eyes fixed on jobs and power and patronage.—Leslie B. Merritt in the Livingston County (Howell) Press.

A "DAD-EYE" VIEW OF MICKEY ROONEY

Here's the story of America's No. 1 box office star, by the man who "knew him when."

Mickey's Dad, in an exclusive interview, tells how Mickey toured the country in a wicker basket, with his father's burlesque show, how he slipped out of the basket at the age of one, to take his first stage bow. And how he went from there to nationwide fame.

Don't miss this fascinating success story told exclusively in this Week Magazine with next Sunday's Detroit News.

PLEDGE TO THE FLAG

"I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands. One Nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

HERBERT W. WOLFF

The people of Grayling know Herbert W. Wolff in, perhaps, a different way from those of his business associates—an executive of one of America's great industrial institutions, his business contacts were with men of other large businesses. His keen business instincts carried him from office boy to the most responsible position to be had with the American Car & Foundry Co. As the senior vice president, this Company has grown and prospered under his management. His genius and ability are recognized by other great leaders of America and of foreign lands.

Here in Grayling we knew him as a neighbor—as one of us, taking part in our community affairs and with many personal friendships and companionships.
His life among us was one of friendly dignity. He was always a gentleman and always holding in friendly esteem those with whom he came into contact. His friends meant much to him, just as he did to those who knew him best.

For about a quarter of a century Mr. and Mrs. Wolff and son Herbert and daughter Marjorie resided with us during the summer seasons. Mr. Wolff passed away Saturday evening, amidst the surroundings that he knew and loved so well—the north country, nature, Grayling, the streams, the lakes, the wild woods, invigorating climate, the hunting, fishing, golfing and—good friendships. He loved it here and each season looked forward more and more to getting here.

No blanket of roses covered his bier. Instead there was a profusion of boughs of pines, balsams, birches, studded with orchids, typifying his love for nature and the esthetic—just as he himself would have wanted it.
All these came from the Wolff Farm on the AuSable where he and his family went often and spent many happy hours.

Everyone from men of big affairs to office boys, loved Mr.
Wolff and the vacant chair in his office in New York City will be a reminder to them of the many strenuous but happy hours he spent there. And those ever cheerful smiles that he had for everyone while he was among us in Grayling will remain with us cherished memories.

FIFTEEN YEARS IN BUSINESS

The people of Grayling have learned to hold Alfred Hanson in high esteem. He not only is conducting a high type one-stop automobile service station and sales agency in Grayling, but also he has proven himself one of our most substantial business men. He has been keen in business and built up a splendid industry, but he has always had time to do those other things for his community that have meant much toward our city progress.

In his plant nine married men are employed, each receiving substantial wages, while working in pleasant surroundings. This is a happy and contented family of employees, all loyal and pulling together for their employer, who in turn was faithful to those under his employ. It's a grand combination that could only exist under such ownership.
We know Mr. Hanson's friends will join us in wishing him many more years of business success and splendid citizenship.

A front page article gives a brief account of his years in business.

Washington MERRY GO ROUND

Washington, D. C.
ROOSEVELT KEPT HIS
POKER FACE

CHICAGO.—There was only one other person present when the President heard the first speech at the convention nominating him for a third term.

The visitor was Mrs. Hattie Caraway, Arkansas' witty, motherly U. S. senator, who entered his White House office for a conference just as Mayor Ed Kelly was starting his address of welcome. In this, Kelly declared that he knew Roosevelt did not want to run, but that he should be drafted anyway.

The President was getting the speech from a small portable radio on his desk. As Mrs. Caraway entered he greeted her with a smile, motioned to a chair and toned down the radio.

From then on he listened in grave silence. When Kelly declared that Roosevelt had to be drafted to "save the heart of humanity," the President's face became solemn. Then as Kelly continued, Roosevelt seemed to sink deeper and deeper into himself.

Once or twice he glanced at Mrs.
Caraway, but his face was inscrutable. It was impossible to tell what he was thinking.

But as Kelly drew to a close, the President's mood lifted and when the Chicago mayor finished, Roosevelt smiled, threw back his head and said, "Well, the mayor is getting to be quite an orator."

That was all. Mrs. Caraway asked no questions about the convention and the President volunteered nothing.

Note.—The day the convention opened, Mrs. Roosevelt told an old friend that she was reconciled to the President running again. "If he has to do it," she said, "then there is nothing else to do. I know he doesn't want to run, but there seems to be no alternative."

WHITE HOUSE PIPE-LINE

From the moment Harry Hopkins landed here last week and that open wire was set up between his suite 308-10 in the Blackstone hotel and the White House, the President has been minutely informed of everything that has happened. From early morning until late at night the wire has buzzed with reports from Washington.

Roosevelt leaders have kept him informed of what was being said and rumored in the hotel lobbies.

And some of the politicians are in for a shock when they learn that certain cracks they thought they were making in private are tucked away in Roosevelt's retentive memory. Whatever else the third-term organization may have lacked, it was good on "intelligence." Every delegation and headquarters was "covered" by a friendly contact who kept Hopkins and his lieutenants advised of inside developments.

STAGNANT CONVENTION

It was a good thing that they were, too. For with time dragging on their hands, delegates seized every rumor and promptly spilled it to the press.

If administration leaders could have had their way, they would have condensed the convention into three days and wound it up by Wednesday. They even discussed doing this, but when it got to Jim Farley he promptly put down his foot. Bent on forcing a roll-call in order to have himself placed in nomination, Jim warned that he would fight any attempt to short-circuit the convention.

The administration couldn't risk an open row, so they had to absorb the opposition's brickbats and make the best of it. But it burned them up, and there are a lot of private scores to be settled later.

Note.—One Roosevelt leader, urging Farley to forget his grievances and remain as national chairman, said: "Jim, if you quit, the public will forget all about you in six months."

"That's okay with me," shot back Farley. "When I quit as chairman, I want to be forgotten." In addition to heading the Yankee ball club, Farley also will take an executive position with a nationally known advertising firm.

MERRY GO ROUND

Chinese Ambassador Hu Shih says blitzkrieg methods won't work in China, "because our spaces are broad and our peoples too many."

While Washington warmly debates the question, "Will we or won't we?"
the old war-time song, "Mademoiselle From Armentieres," is coming back.

A group of 35 Latin American ladies of the diplomatic circle put on white costumes and gathered at the Red Cross building to make bandages.

Beautiful Mrs. Harry Woodring, who has spent all her life in Massachusetts and Washington, is being kidded about going out to live on the prairies of Kansas. But Helen says she loves Kansas, intends to have a swell time and do a lot of painting there.

Washington irony: When the cabinet group met to plan for disposal of surpluses of the Western hemisphere, the plan's author, Dudley Wood, prepared to leave government service because congress failed to appropriate funds to continue Secretary Hopkins' "brain trust."

Grayling Plays At Mackinac Isle, Sunday

LOSES TO MACKINAW
CITY, 10 TO 4

Sunday the Grayling Merchants journey to Mackinac Island to cross bats with the Islanders.
The Grayling team has lost two games to the Islanders in previous years losing a 13-inning battle in 1938 and last year Grayling was held to one hit by Smith, Island hurler and former minor league pitcher.

Last Sunday at the home field the Mackinaw City Indians made it two straight victories over the local nine in a Northern Michigan League game, 10-4. Mackinaw City started the game by scoring three runs on three singles, a base on balls, and an error by center-fielder Keith Bowen in the opening inning but Grayling came back to tie the count in their half. After Ken Gothro struck out John Deckrow reached first on an error by the first baseman and Edwin Chalker was hit by a pitched ball. Keith Bowen doubled down the left field foul line scoring Deckrow, and Dewey Coutts singled over second to drive home Chalker and Bowen. Lewis Smith walked but George Hanson struck out and Rudy Harrison grounded to short to end the inning.

Mackinaw City broke the tie in the second inning when the first man up singled, stole second, and scored on Pitcher Grondin's double. They added another run to their lead in the third on a walk, a stolen base, an infield putout, and a fly ball to deep center field. Grayling threatened to tally in the third inning when Bowen led off with a single and Coutts beat out a bunt but Smith grounded into a double play and G. Hanson struck out.

The visitors increased their lead in the eighth on errors by "Short" Anthony, Deckrow, and Pat Kolka and single and a double for four runs. In the last of the eighth Chalker singled to center field and Bowen was safe on an error by the third baseman.
Chalker scored Grayling's last run when Catcher Sommers threw into center field trying to pick him off second. Pitcher "Chief" Grondin then struck out Coutts, Kolka, and Clayton Anthony, batting for G. Hanson, to retire the side. The visitors scored their last run in the ninth on a single, a wild pitch, and two infield put-outs.

Keith Bowen with a double and a single in four times at bat, driving in a run and Manager Dewey Coutts with two singles in four times up, batting in two runs led the loser's attack. C.
Parker and Nelligan led the winner's hitting with three for four apiece. Grondin, the winning hurler, racked up seventeen strikeouts, and allowed only six hits. Elmer Kellogg, pitching the route for Grayling, allowed ten hits and struck out six while issuing three base on balls.

TO THE REPUBLICAN VOTERS OF THE 28TH SENATORIAL DISTRICT

I take this opportunity to formally announce that I am a candidate for nomination in the primary to be held on September 10.
I have filed my petitions with the Secretary of State and they have been accepted by him.
I also take this opportunity to thank the men and women who so willingly circulated my petitions and also thank the large number of voters who signed these petitions so generously, nearly 2,000 altogether.

When I was elected to this high office of state senator I interpreted the wishes of the people of the district to mean that they wanted decency and honesty in government, enforcement of the law, protecting of our natural resources and to secure for the communities of which the district is made up a fair share of the activities of the different departments of the state of Michigan. I have tried to carry out the wishes of my constituents and in such a way that no voter who placed his confidence in me would be ashamed of any action of mine.
I hope that I still have your confidence and will have your support in the primaries in September. For which support I will be profoundly grateful.

The train was running at full speed at the time the accident occurred, and the fact that no casualties are to be reported is believed to be due to the steel coaches, and because of a line of box cars on the track toward which the coaches tipped.

The sad news has just reached the Avalanche office of the death of Frank Pond. Mr. Pond gave up his work at the baggage room of the Michigan Central several weeks ago because of ill health and since that time had become weaker every day. BEST MAN WINS

Betty was hesitating between two young men and at last it struck her that she might get some help from her father.

"Which do you think I should take, daddy?" "Joe is a awfully handsome, but Sam is a nice steady chap."

Father did not hesitate. "My dear," he replied, "if you want a good husband, take Sam. He really loves you."

Betty looked interested. "How do you know?" she asked. Father smiled.

"I've been borrowing money from him for the last six months," he said. "and he still comes to see you twice a week."

Not Without Honor

Somebody once remarked to Grimm that his children must be the happiest in the world since they lived in the midst of fairy tales.

Grimm replied by telling how one day his son was told by a friend that his father had written the famous fairy stories.

The boy would not believe it, and ran to his father saying, "They say you wrote those fairy stories; surely you never invented such silly rubbish?"

CONSIDERATION

He—Have you ever considered getting married?

She—No. I've been married three times but I never stopped to consider it.

Fresh From the City

A couple of tourists called at a Maine farm house on an early morning recently. "We were wondering," spoke up the lady, "if we could get a glass of fresh milk?"

"Now, that's too bad," sympathized the housewife, "but you see we live quite a way from the city, and the milkman hasn't got here yet!"

Farmer—You say you have been around everywhere and you can't find a thing to do?

Sambo—Yes, suh, Boss; dat's right. I'm jes' too heavy fer dat work an' jes' too light fer heavy work.

Old Masters

Mrs. Pumpkinseed (to new maid)—Be careful when you dust these pictures, Mandy; they're old masters.

Mandy—Gracious, ma'am! Who'd ever thought you'd been married all them times.

TOUCHING SERMON

"He preached a very touching sermon then?"

"He did that! You should have seen the collection they took up."

Thorough

A cockney, entering a tavern during the "blackout," saw in a dimmed corner a coalman with the marks of his calling still on his face.

"Blimey," said the cockney, "that's what I calls overdoing it."

Wildlife

Fish from the Great Lakes contribute largely to the preferred fish trade, having in 1938 an average value per pound more than three times that of the average for the entire country, according to Federal Fish and Wildlife service reports.

Deer hunters killed a (computed) total of 49,148 deer and 628 bears in Michigan in the last hunting season, slightly more than the 1938 tally of 44,809 deer and 598 bears.

According to professional guides of the north who have accompanied tourists on both camera and hunting trips, it is much more difficult to secure a good picture of game in its native wilderness than to kill it with a high powered rifle.

The snowshoe hare, once plentiful in southern Michigan, now has left the region but is common in the swamps and forests of northern Michigan where farms are scarce.

In Michigan, at the end of the breeding season, the stock of cottontail rabbits may be 10 times as numerous as the stock which survived the winter.

Three or four litters a season among Michigan's cottontails are common, with four to seven young in each litter. Maximum number of young that females can produce, consistently, in a season, is estimated at 25.

Reconnaissance in the vast marshlands of Alaska indicate their value in contributing to the continental supply of waterfowl has not been fully appreciated.

In 1940, it is estimated by the Federal Fish and Wildlife Service, there are some 65,000,000 migratory birds in North America.

FEW CENTS EXTRA FOR TIGHT WINDOW FRAMES IS GOOD INVESTMENT

LEAKY JOINT

This is the kind of different window frame construction that is used in many new homes. It results in drafts and dirty walls around windows. Arrows point to where cold air leaks in.

TIGHT JOINT

Contractors call this wide blind stop construction. It cuts air leakage more than half around window frames. Costs just a few cents extra per window. Arrow points to wide blind stop.

Don't overlook the importance of the low window frame when you build your new house. It is the one thing that permanently joins your windows with the framework of your house. A window frame properly constructed keeps out dirt and drafts by making a weather-tight joint with the wall. A window frame indifferently constructed will allow as much as 174 cubic feet of air per hour to leak into your home, air that is often loaded with dust, to dirty up walls and cause drafts.

Good Construction Costs Little. Wide blind stop construction in window frames has been in use for many years, yet jerry builders will use frames without it in order to cut costs without regard to consequences. This type of construction costs about 30c to 50c more per window opening than ordinary construction and it will quickly pay for itself in heat saved and added comfort.

Window Frames Permanent

Remember window frames are a permanent part of the wall in your new home. To tear them out and replace them is not only a mess but a big expense as well. The easiest way to avoid leaky window frames in your new home is to buy frames that make a weather-tight wall joint and that means wide blind stop construction.

SCHOOLS FOR HIGHWAYS

Georgia sometime back had a deflated state treasury and was not paying its teachers' salaries—result, it seemed necessary to close the schools. But the state highway department had a fat bankroll from gasoline taxes which it declined to part with. Governor Rivers, in discussing what to do, styled it a question of "schools or highways" in Georgia. He settled the matter recently by ordering the highway to disgorge sufficient gasoline taxes to pay the teachers' salaries. They're too smart down in "Gawgys" to amend their constitution to prohibit gas tax diversion, as we did in Michigan in 1938. But then, some folks in our state think book learnin' less important than foot-deep, 50-foot wide pavements for for-hire trucks that pay little or nothing—mostly nothing—to use our highways for commercial purposes.

Non-partisan News Letter Michigan Press Association By GENE ALLEMAN

Raising the 1940 campaign strategy of the republican state central committee has centered to a major degree on Arthur H. Vandenberg.

First, committee leaders hoped the national ticket would be headed by the United States senator from Michigan. In this objective the committee had sympathetic support from Vandenberg himself. The senator declined to campaign actively for the nomination and said that while he was available to duty he was not an open candidate for the office.

A national ticket headed by Vandenberg would put Michigan safely into the republican column next November, so the press went. Michigan could be depended upon, they argued, to support a native son for the white house.

Second, the committee counted on Vandenberg, if the national convention did not nominate him for the presidency, to head the Michigan ticket for re-election. Indirectly it was an indication by state party chairmen that one of their sources of popular strength in November would be Vandenberg.

If either reckoning—national or state ticket—Vandenberg was to set the pace.

Vandenberg Career

It was twelve years ago that Woodbridge N. Ferris, a former Democratic governor and member of the United States senate, died suddenly.

As editor of the Grand Rapids Herald, Vandenberg had been one of the first to declare for Fred Green as republican candidate for governor against Groesbeck. Although there was some talk about giving a temporary appointment to Joseph Fordney of Saginaw, who for many years was chairman of the ways and means committee of the House, Governor Green gave the appointment to Vandenberg.

Vandenberg thus in the year 1928 came to Washington straight over the heads of county and state officials. While Vandenberg had traveled, had spoke and had written for the republican state committee, he had never enthused over the state legislature or had mixed much with the county chairmen and with the boys who control the votes in the wards. A gifted man, he was not a state politician.

Vandenberg was born 56 years ago in Grand Rapids of Dutch and English blood. His father was a harness maker in Grand Rapids, and the family was poor. When the youth went to the University of Michigan to study in the law class of 1904, he worked his own way but for reasons of health had to retire at the end of his first year.

He is fond of saying frankly that the best thing the college gave him was a wife.

A Statesman

From just another enterprising editor in an American small city, Vandenberg rose rapidly in favor in the Senate which has been termed a seminar of statesmanship, and today he is a valued member of two of its leading committees—Foreign relations and finance.

Working hard at the job, he has a solemn rule never to leave Washington while Congress is in session. Even during the delegate primary campaigns in western states this spring, he consistently declined to leave the capital for political speech-making trips.

The Philadelphia Record on June 23, 1937 drew this picture of the Michigan senator:

"Tall, sparse-haired, Vandenberg swapped tortoise shell glasses for rimless ones to 'look less bookish.' Likes to match pennies, bowl, play bridge, billiards. He carries a pedometer, stops his regular morning walk when it shows four miles.

"Finger pointer and desk pounder in the Senate, he smokes heavily, likes dark suits, always double breasted, watches that his 180 pounds don't go up. Inflation fears constantly assail him; he carries German marks printed with 100,000,000 signs to give colleagues visual warning of its danger."

Oratorical Ability

A lone wolf in Michigan politics (he is not a part of any faction and is inclined to leave state politics to the governor), Vandenberg's chief asset is his oratorical ability.

Those who heard his oration "The Spirit of Mackinac" at the governors' conference at Mackinac Island when Fred Green was host to other state executives will profuse wildly at the memory. Vandenberg can speak!

One of Vandenberg's qualities is tolerance for others. This trait, combined with courage, has made him an outstanding figure at Washington.

No one will accuse him of compromising issues with President Roosevelt, yet when the president spoke at Indianapolis in the 1936 presidential campaign, the latter said that he and Vandenberg were such good friends that if the Republicans had nominated the Grand Rapids senator the two candidates could have stamped the country from the same platform!

This prestige of oratory has helped Vandenberg in the past to remain in the voters' good graces. There has been a tendency to say that Vandenberg at Washington is an asset to Michigan. "He does the state credit."

Expert at Compromise

Called a genius at the art of offering workable compromises, Vandenberg is also respected for his unyielding opposition to things which he deems inimical to national interests. He led the fight on the Passamaquoddy project. He blocked the Florida ship canal. He assailed the multi-billion reserve fund created by the Social Security Act. He was the author of the amendment to the 1933 banking act which created insurance for bank deposits.

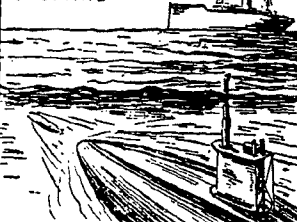

In foreign affairs he has been an isolationist maintaining that America entered the World War only because Wall Street wanted to save its neck.

What Michigan will do to his career is for the voters to decide next fall. In any event, Vandenberg will give the campaign a dash of prestige which the state committee openly welcomes. He is a national figure.

SUBMARINES DO NOT AIM TORPEDOES AT THEIR VICTIMS

When a submarine is ready to release a torpedo to sink an enemy ship, the death-bearing projectile is not aimed directly at the ship, as is commonly believed, but is aimed as much as a half-mile ahead of the ship. It often takes the torpedo as long as two minutes to reach its mark, and the ship may have traveled forward a half-mile or more in that time. The distance and speed of the ship must be calculated before the torpedo is released. The rudders are set to guide the torpedo, and a gyroscope keeps it on its course after release. They are sometimes discharged two or three miles from the intended target, but a half-mile is more certain. Ships zigzag to confuse submarines. A torpedo costs around $10,000 to $15,000, and is about 20 feet long.

Dogs Seldom Live to

The Age of 20 Years

The question as to how old dogs get comes up frequently. Some dogs live longer than the average and a few breeds are noted for their longevity.

In general, while dogs have been reported as living into their 20s, such cases are decidedly unusual. The average dog does well if he lives to be from 12 to 15 years old.

One old-time method for figuring a dog's age was to check the period during which his growth continued and to multiply that by seven to get the age the dog would attain. Such a procedure is not necessarily accurate because many outside factors such as diet will have their effect upon the life of a dog.

A dog is actually approaching old age when he gets to be 10 years old and his exercise and his food should be regulated in accordance with this fact.

Some dogs retain all of their vigor up to almost the end of their lives, but there are others who slow down perceptibly and who grow deaf, lame and generally less physically able.

Care in feeding the right amounts of the correct foods will do the most to keep a dog so that he goes beyond the average age. A fat dog is one out of condition, and a dog out of condition is more likely to pick up the various diseases which may strike him low.

Next to feeding and probably of equal importance is the proper amount of regular exercise. In fact regularity of all habits will help to give a dog long life. Regular times of exercise and regular lengths of exercise should be the course for any dog, if he is to be healthy.

Little dog pills should be cared for at once lest they grow and sap the dog's strength. The dog's teeth should be watched for decay and bad teeth should be extracted.

SUMMER FOOD POISONING

Adults and children frequently have gastro-intestinal upsets with diarrhea during the summer months caused by the poisoning from food in which bacteria has been permitted to grow. A recent United States Navy bulletin contains eleven rules for the prevention of such food poisoning. These should be learned thoroughly by every picnicker and housewife, and should be scrupulously adhered to by restaurant managers. These epidemics of food poisoning are extremely common, and unless considerable care is taken sometimes serious intestinal disease results.

1. It must be presumed that all food is contaminated with bacteria, and their growth to a dangerous degree can be prevented either by continued cooking, or by placing in a refrigerator immediately following the cooking.

2. Contaminated foods usually are not changed in appearance, taste or odor.

3. Frozen foods should be thawed in a refrigerator whenever possible.

4. To insure quick cooling, warm foods, ground or cut up, should be refrigerated in shallow pans, otherwise the warmth in the center of the mass will act as a media for bacterial growth.

5. If boiled ham is to be served it should be cooked, sliced and served while hot. If cold ham is to be served, it should be refrigerated immediately after boiling or baking and sliced just before serving.

6. Hash should not be served if the ingredients are prepared the night before or even several hours before it is to be cooked and served.

7. Any food having a high protein content, if improperly handled may result in food poisoning. Among this group are: cooked or processed meats, meat products, gravies, fish, shell fish, spaghetti, macaroni, custards and puddings.

8. Fresh fruits and vegetables should be thoroughly washed before using.

9. Kitchens should be kept free of insects, rodents and dust. All foods should be covered, whenever possible, to prevent contamination.

10. Utensils should be kept scrupulously clean.

11. Food handlers should thoroughly wash hands and arms after each visit to the toilet. Infections of fingers or hands frequently result in contaminated food products with subsequent outbreaks of food poisoning.

We have had a lot of compliments on our new office front. Small windows about 11 x 11 inches in size replace the six large windows, and a new door of similar design replaces the old double doors. Bumping Along
ON ROCK BOTTOM

..... is over

The building market—materials and labor—is extremely sensitive. The slightest increased demand is instantly reflected in increased prices for both commodities.

The present price level of building materials is favorable to only one set of interests—builders of new buildings and repairers of old structures.

Accumulated demand is bound, within the next few months, to increase prices and eliminate a building opportunity which only comes once or twice in a decade.

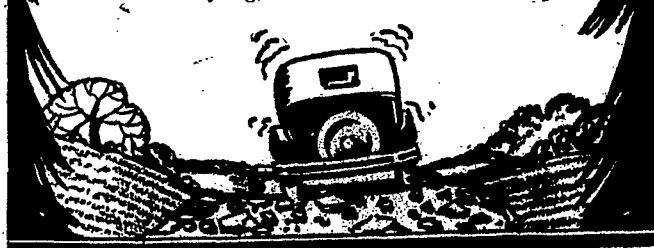

The builder of a home, barn, a chicken coop or a garage whose investment is made at the present record-breaking low levels is going to find himself in possession of a mighty attractive investment because the building industry is about through bumping along on rock bottom.

There could anything is in a buyer's grasp.

Sunshine Bad For Tuberculosis

"Sunshine is good for some ills, but not tuberculosis," Dr. C. J. Stringer, superintendent of the Ingham County Sanatorium, warned people of Michigan this week. "If a member of the family is thought to be tuberculous he should be taken to a doctor for an X-ray examination before trying any home-sun treatment."

According to Dr. Stringer, an active worker in the Michigan Tuberculosis Association, the only known cure for tuberculosis is bed-rest, usually accompanied by surgical treatment. "Sometimes restricted sun rays are recommended for certain types of tuberculosis," he went on, "but this is a safe procedure only under constant medical supervision."

Several years ago wholesale sunning became popular among lay persons who sought to cure themselves of tuberculosis. This well-meant enthusiasm, however, suffered bad consequences. As Dr. Stringer pointed out, prolonged exposure to sun is not good for a normal individual, let alone the sick man or woman in whom temperature changes are to be avoided.

"But, for the general run of healthy people, sunlight taken in moderation is beneficial." In conclusion, however, Dr. Stringer cautioned out-door enthusiasts, "remember that excessive heat and severe burns from the sun, may be, and often are, as dangerous as burns from actual flames."

The Lieutenant Governor-- Duties of The Office

(By Elton R. Eaton, Editor and Publisher, The Plymouth Mail)

When the state legislature sometime ago passed a law making the Lieutenant Governor a member of the state administrative board, it placed a state official in a position to give the citizens of Michigan exceptional public service.

The original law creating the board made all of the elective state officials, except the Lieutenant Governor, members of the board. All of these officials are the heads of departments employing large numbers of people. They have much to do with policies and administrative functioning that directly involve public good, will or displeasure.

The Lieutenant Governor will be the only member of the board who is not the head of any department employing large numbers of people. Because of this departmental freedom, he will be able to act as he sees fit without having to give first consideration to the welfare of his own department, or those upon his payroll.

It is this freedom that should make possible upon the part of the Lieutenant Governor, a public service that will be outstanding. The administrative board has very wide responsibilities. It has much to do with the supervision of all appropriations made by the state legislature. It has general supervisory control over the functions and activities of all state administrative departments, boards and commissions, including the state purchasing department.

The position of Lieutenant Governor is now vacant, the death of the Governor over a year ago having made necessary the advancement of the Lieutenant Governor to the executive position. Next week's article will be a brief historical review of the office.

South African Racket

Cape Providence, South Africa, is preparing drastic action against the money-making racket of "jackal breeders." It is stated in Capetown. It has been discovered that in parts of the province professional hunters, who destroy jackals for bounties, have been capturing only the cubs, allowing adult animals to escape, and thus providing for the next season's "crop." It is suspected that in certain districts there are secret jackal breeding establishments, the owners of which make big profits by constantly turning in very young jackals. Last year the record number of 36,000 were destroyed at the standard rate of $2.50 an animal. In some districts $3.75 is paid.

County Names Dropped From License Plates

Names of counties will not appear on the 1941 maroon and white Michigan license plates, Harry F. Kelly Secretary of State announces.

This decision was reached following tests at the General Motors Testing ground at Milford, which showed that the name of the county would fill up the plate and therefore, reduce the visibility.

"There is no need for the county name on a plate anyway," said Mr. Kelly, "because the serial letters tell law enforcement officers or any one else who is interested enough to inquire, what county and branch office the plates came from."

Mr. Kelly has been appointed chairman of a committee of the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators to continue experiments as to what license plate sizes and colors are most readily visible. Michigan received this honor because it is the first state to adopt a uniform licensing system under which special plates are not issued, even to the highest officials or most prominent and influential citizens.

Most Spanish Spot

The most Spanish spot under the American flag is the romantic city of Ponce, on the southern coast of the United States territory of Puerto Rico. Although Ponce was the first city to be entered by the Americans who took Puerto Rico in 1898, it has been the last to give up the Latin heritage it derived from its conquistadores. English is spoken widely in Puerto Rico, but Spanish is the prevailing language in this stronghold of old Castile.

Scientists Use Mosquito Actors To Find Best Insect Repellent

Dr. Willem Rudolfs, bio-chemist at Rutgers University, checking the "emotions" of a mosquito in a test tube to find a super-repellent for insect pests.

THOUGH no one would mistake a mosquito for a movie star, the two do have one thing in common. Mosquitoes can definitely express their emotions. They are able to register their likes and dislikes as vividly and accurately as any screen idol on a Hollywood lot.

This fact has been discovered by scientists at Rutgers University. This research group has been studying insects for more than five years in an effort to find a chemical combination that would really protect human beings against the bites of insect pests. It is in the course of their work of testing the effects of these chemicals upon the mosquitoes that the scientists have developed a "code of emotions."

For example, mosquitoes express irritation by flying rapidly back and forth, meanwhile singing in a high key. Pleasure or satisfaction are registered by rubbing legs, wings and stingers, and singing in a low tone. If mosquitoes are forced to remain near an object that they dislike, they curve their stingers upward in a snooty pose, much like that of humans. They indicate caution by always keeping one or two hind legs bent upward when they alight.

These insect actors have been used to evaluate hundreds of chemicals at the New Jersey University to find which combination was most effective in keeping mosquitoes from biting. Scores of these combinations were eliminated because they had an unpleasant odor, or irritated the skin, or were difficult to remove. During the winter months the Rutgers scientists have raised mosquitoes in the University laboratory so that the work could go on without interruption.

As a result of their patient research, the Rutgers laboratory staff have been rewarded. They report that they have developed a lotion that protects humans better than any other. Not only does this substance baffle mosquitoes, but it keeps away gnats, sand fleas, black flies, deer flies, chiggers and similar pests. One application may last as long as three hours.
